Introduction

Why is it that some meetings bring life to your soul, while others leave you wishing you'd never stepped in the room? What happens at the best ones, that makes them productive, fulfilling, sometimes even magic?

The Group Pattern Language names what skilled facilitators and other participants do to make things work—when the Group Works. The 91 group process patterns represented here reflect generations of accumulated wisdom that lie at the heart of successful meetings, conferences, retreats, town halls and other group sessions, large and small. Much of our collective work depends on conversations: quality interchanges by which we together envision, shape and begin to enact the world we desire.

The content here is more specific than values and less specific than tips and techniques, cutting across existing methodologies with a designer's eye to capture the patterns that repeat.

You can use these patterns to support your process as a group designer, facilitator or participant. Use them to plan your next event, distill lessons from a past group experience, find creative insight in the middle of a process, or deepen your learning about the nature of groups.
About this Book

Introduction to Group Works: A Pattern Language for Bringing Life to Meetings & Other Gatherings is offered as alternative to the original card deck version of Group Works. The eBook (Kindle & ePb) and PDF editions have many internal links for you to see the connections between patterns and categories, and the print edition is a small and handy portable reference. In addition, these editions may serve as a starting point for a longer reference work about the Group Pattern Language.

The original Group Works was created by more than fifty volunteers (the Group Pattern Language Project) from diverse organizational backgrounds, who collaborated over three years to express the core wisdom at the heart of successful group sessions. This project was led by Tree Bressen, Dave Pollard, and Sue Woehrlin. For more information about the origins and creators of Group Works, see GroupWorkDeck.org/acknowledgements.

To learn more about the patterns, and participate in the future, join the Group Pattern Language Project at GroupWorksDeck.org/participation.

Learning the Patterns

The most important place to start is to know is "why" these patterns were created. The answers are contained in these questions:

- Why is it that some meetings bring life to your soul?
- While others leave you wishing you'd never stepped in the room?
- What happens at the best ones, that makes them productive, fulfilling, sometimes even magic?

So begin your learning journey by remembering one of those great meetings. Don't worry about how or why, just recall that powerful feeling after a successful group meeting. It is that feeling which 50+ facilitators over three years attempted to distill their best practices to understand and repeat. These are the patterns they came up with.

The next step we recommend is to look more deeply at two patterns. Look quickly through the book and find one that calls to you as a skill that you have some strength in. Then quickly pick one in which you feel you are weak. Don’t worry too much about choosing them—instead, once you have picked two patterns spend a little time to learn more about them.

Understand that every word and every part of the pattern has meaning. It can also be useful to go to the website and click on the pattern name at GroupWorksDeck.org/patterns_by_name and see what has been written up about it. You can even contribute your own experience or links there.

This gives you two starting points of knowledge about the patterns—how do you grow your knowledge from there? We suggest you start by learning the categories.
The Category Keystones:

The next chapter briefly describes each of the 9 categories of patterns. They are in rough order of when you need to think about them in a group process. Read the description of each category, and look at the boldface "Keystone" pattern card for each category. The Keystone that has been chosen the most representative pattern for that category.

Start with just these 9 Keystone patterns. Read one a day or week and try to embody some aspect of that Keystone pattern for that period of time.

Once you understand the Keystones, it becomes far easier to understand the rest of the patterns.

Here are some more things you can do:

For each category:

Take a Keystone pattern and look all other patterns in the same category. Try to understand how the other cards add to the Keystone to fill out the category.

Like you did with your opening exercise, pick one that is a strength and one that you need to work on. Identify why you are strong with one and weak with another. Can you share something you've learned that makes you strong in that pattern? Maybe post it in your blog or on the website. Do you have a question about a pattern that you don't understand well or have a weakness in? See if it is on the website, and if not, ask a question on the pattern email discussion list about it.
For each Keystone:

Pick a Keystone pattern. Take a look at each of the Related patterns for that Keystone—each was chosen if it would be helpful or supportive to implement that pattern. Look in particular at those patterns that are not in the same category as the Keystone. Ask yourself the question of how this pattern serves the rest? How else are these patterns are connected? What do they have in common, how are they different?

More activities:

From here there are a wide variety of activities that you can do to better understand the patterns, at GroupWorksDeck.org/activities. When you are starting out, we particularly recommend the following activities as they do not require a group:

GroupWorksDeck.org/intuitive-guidance

GroupWorksDeck.org/self-assessment-and-self-directed-learning

GroupWorksDeck.org/learning-while-observing

GroupWorksDeck.org/it-depends-exercise

Most of the activities listed above are group activities, but if you don't have a local group to talk with them about, consider learning how to do a Google Hangout and inviting friends, colleagues and participants of the Group Works email list to join you to work through one of these activities. Up to 10 people can be in the same Hangout and it is free.
The Pattern Categories

The patterns of the Group Pattern Language are divided into 9 categories (each with corresponding icon and colour). The category represents a group need addressed by that set of patterns.

The categories are listed in the rough order in which they might naturally be considered in event design; starting with 📝Intention, leading to 🌈Flow to finish with 🧠Inquiry & Synthesis—all surrounded by 🌞Faith. Of course reality is a bit more complex.
While categories will aid in your learning the Group Pattern Language, one could make the case for including some patterns in two or even three categories. For the purpose of simplifying the overall list, we determined one primary category for each pattern here.

Each category is named in bold-italic, followed that category’s “Keystone” pattern in bold. Other pattern names are plain text.

Intention

Serving and attending to the larger purpose for the gathering and how it is manifested, including addressing its longer term meaning and consequence. Why are we here, what’s our shared passion, and what we are aiming to accomplish.

Keystone Pattern: 📂 Purpose

Patterns: 📂 Commitment, 📂 Invitation, 📂 Priority Focus, 📂 Setting Intention
Purpose

Purpose is the destination we choose from a sea of possibilities. Shared purpose calls us together and focuses us, evolving as understanding deepens. It gives impetus and energy to our work—when we’re connected with genuine purpose, energy flows and things happen.

Key Pattern for Category: 🌱 Intention

Related: 🔝 Commitment, 🔝 Priority Focus, 🔝 Setting Intention,
🔹 Common Ground, 🌳 Seeing the Forest, Seeing the Trees,
🔹 Holding Space, 🧘 Spirit
A group dedicated to its work persists through obstacles, distractions, and lulls. Remind yourselves of your larger purpose and what you really care about. As the group moves toward action, support effectiveness by getting clear on who will do what by when and how to ensure it really happens.

Understanding and working with the broader context and circumstances both in place and in culture.

Keystone Pattern: History and Context

Patterns: Aesthetics of Space, Circle, Gaia, Group Culture, Nooks in Space and Time, Power of Place, Whole System in the Room
History and Context hugely influence how the rest of the patterns are invoked. Pay attention to why things are the way they are and what the people coming expect. Tune in to discern when to respect the existing culture vs. when it benefits to stretch toward something new.

Key Pattern for Category:  📋 Context

Related:  🌊 Group Culture, 🌐 Opening and Welcome, 🌍 Preparedness, 🔄 Viewpoint Shift, 📜 Naming, 📝 Story, 🌶️ All Grist for the Mill

Category: 🌍 Context

Related: 🔴 Circle, 🔵 Gaia, 🔴 Nooks in Space and Time, 🔴 Power of Place, 🔵 Hosting, 🔴 Preparedness, 🔵 Power of Constraints
A Circle is a safe, solid, yet permeable space with an inside, an outside, and a focus that moves from person to person. A welcoming form where everyone can see each other and all voices are heard, it creates a field that invites sharing and story.

Incubate creativity and nurture relationships by encouraging unstructured time and semi-private space. Insight arises fruitfully during times of open-ended conversation or in solo musing at the edges of a group. Can be designed ahead, or may arise in the moment.

Category:  ●  Context

Related:  ●  Aesthetics of Space,  ●  Subgroup and Whole Group,
●  Embrace Dissonance and Difference,  ●  Value the Margins,

Breaking Bread Together

Gathering over a meal is one of the most ancient forms of community process, as people sharing food appreciate each other at a profound level. Nourished bodies and relationships pave the way for better collaboration and higher quality work.

Category: 🎀 Relationship

Related: 🎀 Group Culture, 🎀 Tend Relationships, 🎀 Celebrate, 🎀 Hosting, 🌿 Rest, 🌿 Ritual, 🌠 Common Ground
Celebrate

With joy and zest, publicly celebrate milestones and recurring events. Affirming shared history, we nourish community, crystallize a sense of accomplishment, and build group identity by unifying our stories and common goals. Can be planned and ritualized, or as spontaneous as a group cheer.

Category: 🌐 Relationship

Related: 🌐 Group Culture, 🌐 Appreciation, 🌐 Breaking Bread Together, 💧 Ritual, 🎉 Playfulness, 🛍 Common Ground, 📜 Story
Good Faith Assumptions

Assuming others’ good intent increases trust and effectiveness. Instead of interpreting “negative” actions as attempts at manipulation, insult, or power-play, we choose to believe people are doing the best they can and look for underlying values or needs in common. Searching for a better story, we find or create one.

Related: 🔴 Setting Intention, ❇️ Appreciation, ✍️ Tend Relationships, 🔶 Common Ground, 🍁 Not About You, 🙅 Taking Responsibility, 🙆 Witness with Compassion
Honour Each Person

Respect each person’s essential human dignity. View others’ unique beliefs, approaches and concerns as a resource for group wisdom. Tolerate and even embrace idiosyncrasies, knowing that each person brings their gifts to the whole more fully when affirmed and appreciated.

Critical awareness and transparency around existing power differences can, if held well, allow the group to adapt authority structures to best reflect their values or serve their aims. Sharing power isn’t always easy, but the rewards for groups who do so can be profound.

Category: 🏫 Relationship

Related: ⚫️ Circle, ⚫️ Shared Airtime, ⚫️ Transparency, ⚫️ Challenge, ⚫️ Value the Margins, ⚫️ Shared Leadership and Roles, ⚫️ Naming
Shared Airtime

Category: 🍀 Relationship

Related: 🌿 Circle, 🎨 Honour Each Person, 🌊 Balance Structure and Flexibility, 🌈 Subgroup and Whole Group, ♧ Value the Margins, 🌐 Holding Space, 🎧 Listening
Transparency

Be open about what’s real: feelings, experiences, how decisions get made, finances, and more. Transparency arises from a belief that the free flow of information and taking action in direct and honest ways best serves group needs. Handled well, openness nurtures trust, collaboration, and authentic community.

Flow

Covers rhythm, energy and pacing. When we do what and for how long. Things to pay attention to both in anticipating the event and in responding to circumstances in the moment, to support movement along the intended trajectory toward the desired outcome.

Keystone Pattern: Divergence and Convergence Rhythm

Patterns: Balance Process and Content,
Balance Structure and Flexibility, Closing,
Follow the Energy, Iteration, Opening and Welcome,
Preparedness, Reflection-Action Cycle, Rest,
Right Size Bite, Ritual, Seasoned Timing,
Subgroup and Whole Group, Trajectory
Divergence and Convergence Rhythm

Diverging widens perspective, explores new terrain and opens up options. Converging coalesces collective wisdom in moving toward focused decisions, concrete outcomes, and the end of the session. Good group process naturally cycles between these two, so be thoughtful about which to engage when.

Key Pattern for Category: 🌿-Flow

Related: 🌿 Iteration, 🌿 Seasoned Timing, 🌿 Trajectory, 🌿 Generate Possibilities, 🌿 Embrace Dissonance and Difference, 🌿 Distilling, 🌿 Moving Toward Alignment
Balance Process and Content

Content refers to what you are talking about and the results of a session. Process is how the conversation happens. Like two wings of a bird, both are needed for balance, lift, and progress.

Category: 🌿 Flow

Related: 🔑 Purpose, 🔥 Priority Focus, 🔍 Transparency, 🌈 Follow the Energy, 🔍 Go Meta, 🌆 Holding Space, 🧘‍♂️ Dwell with Emotions
Balance Structure and Flexibility

Structures, such as a clear agenda, time limits, or raising hands before speaking, can create safety, focus, and a form for the group’s energy to pour into. Yet to sustain the life of a group, this must be balanced with a great openness to change, dancing between the two as needed.

Category: 🌈 Flow

Related: 🌈 Divergence and Convergence Rhythm,

Closing

The formal ritual that concludes the collective time and space by completing the cycle of a group process. Include everyone, acknowledge the end of the time together and mark the transition point, ushering in a shift to what follows.

Category: 💚 Flow

Related: ⚡️ Commitment, 🎉 Celebrate, 🌅 Divergence and Convergence Rhythm, 🌍 Ritual, 🎫 Feedback, 🍂 Harvesting, 🔍 Moving Toward Alignment
Follow the Energy

What does the group really want in this moment? Let your observation of cues and “vibes” guide your response and steering of topics and process. Paying attention to where the life is, you help it flower.

Category: 🌿Flow

Related: 🌿Balance Process and Content,
🌿Balance Structure and Flexibility, 🌿Improvise,
🌿Emergence, 🌿Feedback, 🌿Presence, 🌿Trust the Wisdom of the Group
Iteration

Try it a second time, even a third. Outcomes of one round of activity or conversation inform the next, deepening, expanding, and generating new understandings and possibilities. For more powerful effect, repeat a process multiple times in the moment, or revisit at a later time.

Category:  Flow

Related:  Divergence and Convergence Rhythm, Reflection-Action Cycle, Trajectory, Emergence, Feedback, Go Deeper, Inquiry
Opening and Welcome

The beginning sets the tone. Start intentionally, in a manner that invites group members to connect with one another, enter their voice into the circle, and participate as their authentic selves. Attend to building enthusiasm, focus, and commitment for the work to come.

Related: 🔗 Purpose, 🔗 Setting Intention, 🔗 History and Context, 🔗 Aesthetics of Space, 🔗 Group Culture, 🔗 Hosting, 🔗 Story
Anticipate what might happen and be ready for it. Do this both before the event, and in your ongoing alert attention. Think through how the agenda will unfold, and do what you can to ensure the right people and resources are present.

Consider. Enact. Debrief. Experiment further. Effective processes that move groups forward often involve cycles of reflection, followed by action, leading to additional reflection, and so on. Alternating in this manner fosters engagement and integration, deepens experiential learning, and promotes adaptive problem-solving.

Category: Flow

Related: Iteration, Trajectory, Deliberate, Distilling, Feedback, Inquiry, Mapping and Measurement
Create unscheduled times for rest, reflection, integration, and nurturing important social connections. Building sufficient “down time” into group process yields better overall results, as participants return to group sessions renewed and often with new insights and ideas.

Category: Flow

Related: Priority Focus, Subgroup and Whole Group, Preparedness, Trajectory, Fractal, Power of Constraints, Seeing the Forest, Seeing the Trees
Ritual

Ceremony is primal; it grounds, connects, and deeply nourishes group spirit. Use it to mark opening, transition, cycles, milestones, or closing. Ritual is also the formal or habitual repetition of intentional practices that have proven their value.

...from the Group Works website (GroupWorksDeck.org):

About the Group Pattern Language Project

Group Works is designed to support your process as a group convener, planner, facilitator, or participant. The people who developed the Group Pattern Language spent several years pooling our knowledge of the best group events we had ever witnessed. We looked at meetings, conferences, retreats, town halls, and other sessions that give organizations life, solve a longstanding dilemma, get stuck relationships flowing, result in clear decisions with wide support, and make a lasting difference. We also looked at routine, well-run meetings that simply bring people together and get lots of stuff done. We aim here to name the core wisdom of what makes deliberative group work successful.

Why are we doing this? Our world is, to a very real extent, based on dialogue. Every action taken that involves more than one person arises from conversation that generates, coordinates, and reflects those actions. Those actions have impact. If our human world is based on conversations, then the work of creating and supporting those conversations is central to shaping a world that works. Designing and conducting meetings and other group sessions well is vital to determining our common future. This project grew around a shared understanding that in an urgent way, our survival depends on our ability to work and play well together, and on discovering and creating group processes which are at the same time effective and life-affirming. Because this is easier said than done, we wanted to deepen and spread the insights, skills, and capacity to make that promise real.
The following core beliefs guide our work:

• Seeing a world in flux and deep need, we believe the work of facilitators, both formal and informal, can make a significant difference to the quality and outcomes of essential conversations. Thus we accept a responsibility, as facilitators and participants in group process, to act for the common good.

• We expect conveners of group process to act with full transparency regarding the motives and expected results of the sessions we organize and run. With honesty and humility, we strive to continuously improve the calibre of our work.

• We choose to assume the best of people. We believe people flourish when entrusted with the opportunity to authentically self-manage, collaborate, and make decisions collectively, as true respected equals. Because the most critical issues facing us in the world and in our organizations are complex and interconnected, we need each other to do this—the challenges we face are beyond solving by leaders or experts in isolation. We believe in sharing power, that we are wiser when we work together.

• We believe that effective group processes are clearly driven by the purpose for which they are called. We respect participants' life energy by invoking processes that productively use their time, resulting in cooperative sessions that meet a high standard in engagement, achievement and connection. We draw on experience and knowledge to create elegant designs with great care, yet remain flexible and open to change as the circumstances, will of participants and flow of events may dictate.

• Good process builds strong communities. Our work is an act of love in service to the world.
We were inspired by Christopher Alexander and the other co-authors of A Pattern Language: Towns, Buildings, Construction, who in 1977 published a seminal work on how to create built spaces that nourish people's souls. They were seekers after wholeness, grace, “the quality that has no name” which they asserted was both deeply subjective and empirically verifiable. Their book was beautiful in form, accessible to the layperson, and aimed to democratize their field. It took the arcane knowledge of how to design the best possible human-scale architecture and crystallized it into 253 principles that have influenced a generation of builders. Their book was also deeply interconnected, listing which patterns connect to each other and how, long before the advent of the World Wide Web made such thinking commonplace. Our project aims to apply the same approach to deliberative group process, and takes advantage of tools (such as wikis) that weren't available in the 1970s.

There are already plenty of good books and models out there to help people run good meetings, and we do not want to replicate them. The Group Works expresses shared wisdom underlying successful approaches that is more specific than general values and less specific than tools and techniques.

Because of space limitations, each pattern description aims only to name the essential What and Why of that particular element. In order to actually use the patterns, you'll need to come up with the How. A lot of Hows are supplied on our website GroupWorksDeck.org, where you will find a growing pool of information about the patterns represented in this deck. Some patterns have plenty of resources already on the website, while others remain to be fleshed out. Over fifty people were involved in the creation of the Group Works, and we'd be delighted for you to join the circle by helping explain how to apply the patterns—see more on this below.
The people who put this together engaged in a multi-year, collaborative process alternating between in-person meetings and work online, learning as we went. We are a cross-section of North Americans from a variety of organizational backgrounds including: higher education, software development, communal living, corporate finance, youth groups, indigenous tribes, political activism, nonprofit management, government agencies, faith groups, and more.

Note on Spellings: As a mixed group of volunteers located north and south of the US/Canadian border, after some deliberation we chose to go with uniform Canadian spellings.

What is a Pattern Language?

A Pattern Language is an attempt to express the deeper wisdom of what brings aliveness within a particular field of human endeavor, through a set of interconnected expressions arising from that wisdom. Aliveness is one placeholder term for "the quality that has no name": a sense of wholeness, spirit, or grace, that while of varying form, is precise and empirically verifiable.

The term was originally coined by architect Christopher Alexander, who, together with five colleagues, published A Pattern Language (PatternLanguage.com) for building in 1977. Others have since applied the term to economics, software design, liberatory communication, wikis and more.

Notable features of Alexander's pattern language that we hope to emulate include:

Accessibility: The original book and the others by Alexander that followed it are completely understandable by an interested layperson, requiring no technical knowledge of architecture. They essentially represent a democratization of the field, which perhaps explains why they have been wildly popular except among professional architects.

Beauty: As books, A Pattern Language and its sequel The Timeless Way of Building themselves embody "the quality that has no name." They are both simple and complex—elegant, inspiring works that draw the reader into a world of discovery. This ability to enact the qualities they are describing gives them a sense of integrity that has not necessarily been matched in other pattern language efforts.
Connection: It is clear from the text that Alexander's book was written in "hypertext" decades before the technology existed to support it. Each of the 253 patterns listed includes links to other patterns it is embedded in, relates with, or supports.

A pattern language is not a collection of methods or techniques. It's more than a set of tools in a toolbox. It moves beyond a list of processes, to seek activities or qualities that repeat across many of those processes. We explore the commonalities that cross boundaries of method, in an effort to home in on what works. It is an interconnected whole, that when applied coherently, brings "the quality that has no name" into a field of human endeavor.

By way of analogy, you might be able to learn a few words of French, and throw them into English conversation. But if you learn the language of French to fluency, then each word of the language is given meaning by the interpretations of the words around it. While a translation dictionary may be helpful, no one would say that a foreign language is merely a list of words with translated definitions beside each one. Rather, taken as a whole, the learning of a new language opens up a new perspective on the world, brings one into a different relationship than was possible before.

Not all of the patterns listed by Alexander, et al., apply to any particular building project, and likewise not all of our patterns here apply to every group conversation. The aim is to provide a deep well for inspiration, and a set of doorways into the "core commons" of deepening group conversation.
What is a Pattern?

For the purposes of this project, a pattern is a feature we believe shows up repeatedly in group processes that result in deepening, connection, and a fulfillment of purpose.

Scope: Our scope is the realm of deliberative/dialogic group processes aimed at goals such as decision-making, input, feedback, strategizing, visioning, and conflict resolution, that take place in the context of meetings, conferences, and other convenings that have these goals. Thus there are many times when people gather together that are beyond our zone of exploration (weddings, soccer matches, choir practice, etc.), although some of the patterns we come up with might also sometimes apply beyond our chosen domain.

While recognizing that there is a lot of overlap between patterns of face-to-face and online interaction, we are focused on face-to-face settings.

While we believe that many of these patterns show up cross-culturally, we do not make the claim that our pattern language is universal. This language is being written by a cross-section of North Americans from a variety of group backgrounds (political activism, communal living, and other alternative cultures; higher education; corporate experience in finance, software, and other fields; religious organizations; nonprofit management; indigenous tribes; public agency work; etc.). That diversity lends strength but falls far from addressing all places and groups. Any session takes place within a specific cultural context, and our assumption is that users of this language will take what inspires them and adapt appropriately.
Range: If you think about everything that goes into making a group conversation fulfilling, there is a vast range of things to pay attention to, from the most general to the most specific. In crafting this language, we ask people to focus on a particular middle section within this range, and hold your thinking at that level. We want to avoid being too general: For example, values such as democracy and cooperation, or principles such as Schwarz's "valid information" and "free and informed choice," are assumed or embedded rather than explicitly considered in the body of this work. We also want to avoid being too specific: There is a level of detail that is already well-represented in the existing literature and that we do not seek to replicate, namely:

- listing and explanations of methods (e.g. The Change Handbook);
- catalogues of tools and techniques.

Of course within our list of potential patterns, some of them are more general and some are more specific, just as Alexander's architectural pattern language includes patterns ranging from "Independent Regions" to "Different Chairs."

Rather than listing methods or techniques, we look for behaviors and qualities that repeat across methods and approaches. What is it that happens over and over again in group processes that work? And then we try to give some guidance for how to do that behavior or evoke that quality. Preferably in straightforward language, using as little jargon as possible. Essentially, we are aiming at the core wisdom of what makes group work successful. And we want it to sing.
THE HALLMARKS LIST (aka "The Pruning Tool")

The following list of questions are here to help guide the pattern writing and editing process. While it's not required that every pattern necessarily be able to answer yes to every question on this list, these are hallmarks that have been noted across many of the patterns.

Does it further the goals of the project?

- Support purpose-driven design
- Deepen the skills of those who serve as group process guides
- Serve as a resource for those who are teaching others
- Increase process literacy among people who are users of process(es)

Does it point us toward "the quality that has no name"? Does it describe a feature that shows up repeatedly in group processes that result in "deepening, connection, and a fulfillment of purpose"?

Does it feel resonant? Is it evocative? Does my gut respond to this with a sense of recognition?

Does it happen across methods/approaches? Is it a common piece underlying multiple methodologies? This is like stacking functions in permaculture, where one element contributes to many yields.

Can it take a large variety of forms? "Each pattern describes a problem which occurs over and over again in our environment, and then describes the core of the solution to that problem, in such a way that you can use this solution a million times over, without ever doing it the same way twice."—A Pattern Language
Is it fractal? That is, does it show up at more than one scale (such as within one item of a meeting and again within the meeting as a whole)?

Is it a distinct creature? That is, once grasped, it stands out as its own thing, coherent, and not merely a result of other aspects of process. While it may take a while to first "see" a pattern, its essential "shape" should be easy to recall once understood. Is it unifying? It may bring together what previously seemed like separate aspects of group process.

Does it describe an action that can be consciously undertaken by conveners and/or participants? Rather than, for instance, a dynamic to be passively observed. Does knowledge of this pattern increase the skill of practitioners?

More Detail on Patterns

The following are links to GroupWorksDeck.org for each pattern. The goal of the project is to eventually provide in-depth descriptions and further links for exploration on every pattern; at the time of this publication, a few of those have been completed, some are in progress, and many have not yet been started. Please get involved if you'd like to help flesh these out.
